Numerous Messages To Support Contention Made Public.

Washington, March 13.—"Much delay and confusion" in the early part of the war was due to the allies dealing individually with the navy department, Admiral Sims told the senate committee investigating his charges against the navy department today.

Various allied admiralties dealt directly with the American navy department over his head, Sims said. Often, he said, he was left in the dark as to the arrangements concluded, only learning of them later "by accident."

"These conditions, he said, subjected him to 'embarrassment, through the impression naturally created in the minds of the allied naval authorities that I was not being supported, and was not in the confidence of the department.'"

Washington, March 13.—More shipping was saved by keeping track of German submarines and routing vessels clear of them than by any other single measure, Rear Admiral William S. Sims told the Senate investigating committee.

"The Admiral's statement was in support of his charge that the Navy Department had a 'fundamental misconception' of the problem of defending home waters in keeping American naval forces on this side of the Atlantic rather than by giving 'whole-hearted and vigorous co-operation' to the allies."

"Actual experience has shown," the witness continued, "that we could depend upon keeping reasonably accurate track of all submarines at sea. We were certain we never would have to deal with but one or two submarines at a time on our own coast, and it was possible to do a great deal toward providing for the safety of shipping in our home waters without the use of anti-submarine craft."

Cablegrams Are Presented

Admiral Sims presented cablegrams announcing the departure from Germany of the first raider for the American coast, sent more than three weeks before the vessels appeared in American waters.

"The messages he read," he said, "were remarkable for the accuracy with which every move of the enemy was foretold, adding that they were founded on absolute information obtained by the British Admiralty."

They proved, he argued, the soundness of the original recommendations to the department that all available forces should be concentrated in European waters.

"It, of course, was in the German interest," he said, "to arouse abroad the impression that they were about to undertake submarine attacks upon the American coast, and it is to be noted that such reports continually were circulated by German agents in Europe and America for the purpose of influencing the Navy Department and to retain craft on the American side."

FRAUD AT SHERMAN; INDICTMENTS URGED BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Washington, March 13.—Indictments of persons said to be responsible for graft, extravagance and waste at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, will be recommended in the report to be submitted to the house next week by Congressman McCulloch of Ohio and Congressman McKenzle of Illinois, majority members of the subcommittee which investigated conditions at the camp. Sworn testimony was obtained to the effect that certain persons deliberately defrauded the government.

Suits also will be proposed for reimbursement of sums said to have been illegally obtained on cost-plus contracts.

SAYS HOOVER WILL ACCEPT NOMINATION

Democrat Holds Food Dictator Will Accept From Either Party

IS POLITICAL ISSUE

Regular Republicans Are Said To Be Against Hoover.

Washington, March 13.—Herbert Hoover will accept the presidential nomination of either party, it makes little difference which, on condition that the party comes out with a platform answering his description of "independent progressivism."

This is the statement made to the International News Service today by a leading Democrat known to have entered to the inner circle of Hooverites, in reply to a report from New York that the former food administrator would refuse the Democratic nomination even if offered him.

Claiming he had received confirmation sufficiently to satisfy him of Hoover's receptivity providing the conditions are right, the visiting Democrat added:

"Hoover is no longer a mere presidential possibility; he is a political issue."

All the "regular" Republicans practically without exception, are against Hooverism. Ditto, a fair number of Democrats. Those favoring the treaty of Versailles and the league of nations, either profess admiration for him, or else refrain from committing themselves.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock makes no secret of his liking for Hoover. On the other hand Senator James A. Reed, Democratic "irreconcilable" from Missouri, said on the senate floor:

"If the Democrats nominate Hoover nothing will be left for the Republicans to do but to put up J. Rufus Wallingford."

William Jennings Bryan, who will be one of the greatest individual forces at the San Francisco convention next June, whether an elected delegate from Nebraska or not, is not a Hoover man. Incidentally, it is believed here that Bryan was one of those Hoover had in mind when he said he was against "Democratic radicals."

FLOOD STAGE RISES IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburg, Pa., March 13.—A flood stage of 22 feet was reported at the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers here this morning and the weather bureau forecasted a rise of three more feet before nightfall. A 25 foot stage will inundate the lowlands and prevent a number of small industrial concerns from operating.

The fast moving ice in the river has weakened a number of bridges and sunk a few small river craft, but the damage has not been great.

Washington, March 13.—Marshal Foch, through the French embassy, today denied reports in special dispatches from Paris, published in the country, regarding his attitude toward the league of nations. The dispatches said the marshal was opposed to the league.

LODGE OFFERS COMPROMISE TO ORIGINAL RESERVATION BEFORE SENATE; STORM BREAKS LOOSE

Final Vote on Treaty Postponed For Another Week, Leaders Fear Following Outbreak In Senate Chamber.

Washington, March 13.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge yielded to the mild reservation Republicans and to the pressure of outside interests that desire ratification of the peace treaty by offering in the Senate a compromise of his original reservation on Article 10.

Barely had this compromise been offered and read at the Secretary's desk when a violent storm was loosed which threatened to postpone for at least another week the final vote on the question of treaty ratification.

Opposition to the proposed compromise came first from the Republican side and was so pronounced as to convince Senator Lodge that he had small chance of gaining anything approximating the full Republican vote for it.

Not only were the irreconcilable opponents of the treaty aligned against it, but Senators who heretofore have voted with Senator Lodge for ratification came out flatly in opposition to it.

It does not differ materially in form from the original reservation by Senator Lodge, but in the transposition of language it permits the obligation un-

COMMITTEE URGES INCREASE TO MINERS

Washington, March 13.—John P. White's minority report on the award of President Wilson's coal commission was submitted to the president today.

The report, it is understood, recommends an increase of approximately 35 per cent to the miners, and for a reduced working day.

White represented labor on the commission and his report is in protest against the wage increase of 25 per cent recommended by Commissioners Robinson and Peale.

White's strongest recommendations are for reduced working hours and on this issue strong pressure will be brought to bear on the president.

John L. Lewis president of the United States Mine Workers, consulted with White in drawing in the report.

Drink Control Bill Must Go Farther Than Intended.

London, March 13.—American educational methods that helped to make the United States "dry" were praised today by Viscountess Nancy Astor, M. P., who is waging a sturdy temperance fight in Great Britain.

"In America the work for temperance was started 50 years ago in the schools," said she. "Children were taught the evil effects of alcohol. British children have not had that advantage, but they must be warned. It is a fight for the future generations. What is it to be, I ask, the babies or the brewers?"

"The drink control bill of the government must go further than the mere regulation of hours of sale. It should form the foundation of future prohibition."

"When I was campaigning for election to the house of commons at Plymouth all my advisers said: 'Do not mention the liquor question. The brewers will knife you.' I told them I certainly would discuss the liquor question and I did so in my speeches. In fact at a unionist dinner, when the men held glasses of liquor aloft, I told them that if I had my way all the booze in the United Kingdom would be at the bottom of the sea."

NEWBERRY TRIAL APPROACHES FINISH

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 13.—The Newberry vote fraud and conspiracy trial today approached a weird finish. As the result of the dramatic collapse on the witness stand Friday of Paul H. King, chief witness for the defense, the three big possibilities loomed as the trial's conclusion when the day's session opened.

That the government, in order to save the case from "mistrial," may agree to waive cross examination in King's case, thus allowing the chief evidence of the defense to stand unchanged.

That the defense would agree to strike out all of King's testimony, thereby leaving itself the flimsiest sort of a case to lay before the jury.

That Judge Sessions will declare a mistrial, in which event the whole case would have to be tried over again.

TWO OTHER REVOLUTIONS IN GERMANY

Ebert Has Been Held In Contempt By the Militarists and Royalists Since Coming Into Power

London, Mar. 13.—(1:30 p. m.)—In the event of an attempt by the German revolutionists to restore the Hohenzollern dynasty in Germany an allied army will move upon Berlin at once, it was learned this afternoon.

Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris says that revolutionary troops in Berlin have proclaimed monarchy.

Revolutionary troops occupied Western district of Berlin. Announced election will be held. General strike of German workers called. Gen. Van Kapp also calls himself premier of Prussia.

New York, March 13.—Counter revolutionary agitations in Germany against the government headed by President Ebert has reached a sudden and successful climax, according to press cablegrams today from London and Berlin.

The first cablegram stated that a proclamation had been issued in Berlin announcing that the established government had ceased to exist.

There have been two currents of counter revolution in Germany, one led by the royalists and militarists; the other by the Spartacists or bolshevik sympathizers. The monarchists have been increasing their activities for the past few months, taking advantage of every peace treaty development to inflame the population and to attempt to wean the army from its support of the Ebert government.

Army officers allied with the fatherland party have been conspiring with more or less openness against the government, despite the repeated assurances of Minister of Defense Gustave Noske that he had the army well in hand. The fatherland party is a coalition of militarists, royalists, junkers and Prussian conservatives. It has consistently opposed any and all peace concessions to the allies. While

It might be accepted as a foregone conclusion that if the monarchists came into power in Germany, they would reject the treaty and thus upset the work of the whole conference. In their desperate efforts to defeat the allied aims they might even attempt a military alliance with Russia, meanwhile making all the trouble they could for the entente with their followers in the near east.

The German monarchists probably would not hesitate to drench Europe in blood once more if they thought they could gain their ultimate ends by so doing. But they would be badly handicapped in their efforts to start a new war by many causes, among them, (1) disorganization of the German army as a fighting unit; (2) lack of navy; (3) the present occupation of much of western Germany by the allies; (4) lack of war materials and the hostility of the conservative element at home.

STATEMENT THAT CONGRESS WILL SUPPORT RELIEF CAUSES AGITATION

Washington, March 13.—The statement by a witness that members of Congress would support soldier relief legislation in order to gain votes started a rumormongering in the House Ways and Means Committee, considering a multitude of bills dealing with the subject.

Frank P. Keech, New York, broker, formerly a lieutenant colonel in the Inspector General's department, opposing additional compensation for former service men, declared legislation might be expected because of political pressure.

The inference that members would be swayed through fear of losing votes was characterized by Chairman Joseph W. Fordney as an insult to the committee and Congress.

Keech replied that his statement was not intended to be insulting, but that it was nevertheless true.

George M. Rushmore, of New York City, a former sergeant, testified that soldiers did not consider the possible harm to Government finances which might result from payment of a cash bonus. A great majority of those receiving money would spend it foolishly in six months, he said.

Rushmore, a member of the Legion, said members of his post did not think the Legion "ought to club Congress into giving a bonus," but he added, "it is only human to take it if the Government is willing to give it."

BOND ISSUE LIKELY.

Washington, March 13.—Prospects for the passage of a bond issue to meet the cost of granting service men a bonus are held to be more than a possibility by members of the house ways and means committee, having soldiers' legislation in charge.

It does not differ materially in form from the original reservation by Senator Lodge, but in the transposition of language it permits the obligation under Article X to continue although the use of the military and naval forces is restricted to the action of congress.

Opponents of the treaty denounced the compromise as a surrender in presenting it he told the Senate he would not sponsor it if he believed it affected in any way the principle of the original reservation.

That it affected this principle substantially was charged by opposition Senators during the course of the bitter debate that ensued.

Senator Frelinghuysen came out boldly against the compromise. He told the Senators they were "playing with fire," and warned them that the compromise had been considered hastily and would not suffice. He added: "I hold my duty to my country to be too sacred to trifle with this question. If we remain out of the league I know we will be safe. If we go in I am not so sure of it."

Wilson's Letter Cited.

Senator Frelinghuysen said the President, in his letter to Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock had convicted himself as an internationalist and declared he had no right to pledge the United States to support such policies.

Army officers allied with the fatherland party have been conspiring with more or less openness against the government, despite the repeated assurances of Minister of Defense Gustave Noske that he had the army well in hand.

The fatherland party is a coalition of militarists, royalists, junkers and Prussian conservatives. It has consistently opposed any and all peace concessions to the allies. While Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff were not openly affiliated with this Prussian organization the chiefs of the party looked to them as "leaders."

The aim of the fatherland party was to restore the monarchy in Germany. Whether or not they hoped to return the ex-kaiser or the former German crown prince to the throne is not definitely known, but it is certain that they had secretly picked some member of the Hohenzollern family.

It is more than probable that the leaders of the monarchist movement have been in secret communication with the reactionaries in both Hungary and Turkey and that the conspiracy contemplated military agitations in the near east to distract the allies attention from middle Europe.

It is not unlikely that the Prussian junkers allied with the monarchists party inspired some of the recent attacks against the allied army officers in and near Berlin to further their calculations. The arrest of Prince Joachim gave the junkers a chance to play on the feelings of the masses by declaring that the prince had been made to suffer because he had stood up for Germany.

President Ebert has been held in contempt by the militarists and royalists ever since he came into power as the socialist head of the German government a year and a half ago. In all that time insidious propaganda has been carried on against him by the conservatives.

One of the biggest elements, if not the biggest, of a successful revolution in Germany is the effect upon the peace treaty.

It might be accepted as a foregone conclusion that if the monarchists came into power in Germany, they would reject the treaty and thus upset the work of the whole conference. In their desperate efforts to defeat the allied aims they might even attempt a military alliance with Russia, meanwhile making all the trouble they could for the entente with their followers in the near east.

"I am surprised and greatly regret that, in spite of the fact that I advised Business Agent Swers I could not accept invitation to deliver an address in Columbus March 18, yet you have advertised me as principal speaker for that meeting. You should make public the fact that I informed your council from the first that my engagements made it impossible for me to be with you on the 18th inst. ## FRENCH SOLDIERS NOT SMALL MEN

Paris, March 13.—The French ministry of war publishes figures showing that the traditional idea of the French "poilu" as a little man is without foundation.

In 1914 the ministry says the average height of the 288,437 conscripts who presented themselves for service was 5 feet, 5 1/2 inches.

Naturally the greatest number, some 19,976, measured about the average for the whole, i. e. 5 feet, 5 inches.

In 1914 only 1853 men of five feet or less were passed for service, though as the war went on, this number increased.

COUNTRY FACES BIG TEACHER SHORTAGE

Washington, March 13.—The country is faced with a serious shortage of school teachers, chiefly through failure to provide adequate salaries, according to reports to the U. S. bureau of education. Conditions are becoming slightly better, however, the report states, in some sections, compared with those of last October, when the National Educational Association conducted an inquiry into the situation.

Based on returns from state school officials, the reports show that on Feb. 13 last there were 18,279 schools closed because of lack of teachers and 41,900 being taught by teachers characterized as "below standard but taken on temporarily in the emergency." Greater shortages are shown to exist in Southern states.

STANDARD OIL SEEKS BIG MARKET

New York, March 13.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today applied to the New York stock exchange for permission to list $98,338,300 of its common shares, as well as a like amount of 7 per cent cumulative nonvoting preferred stock. This is accepted by Wall street as an indication that the company intends to seek a broader market for its securities, which are now limited to the curb market.

It also is believed that the application foreshadows an intention on the part of the company to recapitalize the shares of subsidiaries, with subsequent distribution of surpluses. Such action is regarded as a logical result of last Monday's supreme court decision exempting stock dividends from taxation as income.

Active subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Co., showed gains of $40 to $150 a share on the curb during the past week.

HAIR NETS AND VEILS INCREASE IN POPULARITY

Trade journals say that milady last year bought three times as many hair nets as ever before.

This statement is corroborated by local dry goods dealers, who say they are now buying hair nets by the gross where they used to buy them only a few at a time.

The hair net, like the veil, is growing more popular all the time, and milady nowadays is seldom without. In fact the hair net business has grown to large proportions lately and has come to be an important item in the stock of the department store.

The increasing popularity and sale of automobiles is credited with causing a like rise in popularity of hair nets and veils. Both are fragile and easily torn and therefore have a greater sale. While probably many of the mere men do not know it, the hair net is made from real human hair. This hair is principally obtained from China, probably because the Chinese hair is stronger and more durable.

In the net factories the hair is sterilized to make it sanitary, and is dyed to the different colors. Skilled workmen then construct the nets by hand, tying the individual hairs in knots about each other also by hand. The work is extremely delicate and requires much skill. The most popular net now is the cap net, which is constructed cap shape, and fits entirely over the coiffure.

Veils are probably more popular, not only because of their advantages when autoing, but because they are now constructed much more attractive than formerly. No more does milady knot her veil behind her head in a big bow with the ends hanging down. Instead the veils are especially made, some of them with rubber in the binding around the lower edge that fits the veil closely and neatly about the chin. Others are bound around the bottom with a heavy ribbon of velvet, which not only makes them attractive, but assists in holding down the flimsy material neatly.

Veils are still sold by the yard or in lengths as desired, but the real smart veil is the chic little veil already made, to fit neatly over the hat and under the chin.

The sale of veils is being pushed all over the country, and as it happens, the Retail Dry Goods Association has proclaimed next week as national veil week. Local merchants will give the sale of veils special attention during the week.

CITY MANAGER FIGHTS PHONE RATE INCREASE

Springfield Official Believes Company Not Entitled to Raise.

Springfield, O., March 13.—City Manager Carr yesterday voiced his protest against the proposed increase in telephone rates by the Central Union Telephone company in Springfield unless facts are produced justifying it.

"The company hasn't shown enough figures to convince me that they are entitled to it," he said.

The company announced its latest proposed increase as effective March 1. The state utilities commission at Columbus postponed the date of its effectiveness to April 1, and indications are that protests may at least postpone it longer.

Ground for Protest. Mr. Carr protests on the grounds that the financial report filed with the utilities commission and shown to the Springfield Chamber of Commerce is more a statement of expectations than a statement of facts, "it is not a financial statement," he says.

In the figures available he points out: The detailed report filed with the state authorities covering the entire

Ohio district does not separate the figures for the different cities. The fact that the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, the holding company, takes 4 1/2 per cent of the gross earnings, before anything else is considered, is not disclosed in the report.

Plant cost is given at the present cost of reproduction which is much higher than the actual cost to the company.

Mr. Carr says that while the city commission has no authority in the matter, a protest from it, or the Chamber of Commerce, or from citizens in groups or as individuals, may be made to the utilities commission.

The Central Union company has before the utilities commission schedules for rate increases in Columbus, Toledo, Dayton, Youngstown, Akron, Zanesville, Sandusky, as well as Springfield.

The most popular net now is the cap net, which is constructed cap shape, and fits entirely over the coiffure.

Veils are probably more popular, not only because of their advantages when autoing, but because they are now constructed much more attractively than formerly. No more does milady knot her veil behind her head in a big bow with the ends hanging down. Instead the veils are especially made, some of them with rubber in the binding around the lower edge that fits the veil closely and neatly about the chin. Others are bound around the bottom with a heavy ribbon of velvet, which not only makes them attractive, but assists in holding down the flimsy material neatly.

Veils are still sold by the yard or in lengths as desired, but the real smart veil is the chic little veil already made, to fit neatly over the hat and under the chin.

The sale of veils is being pushed all over the country, and as it happens, the Retail Dry Goods Association has proclaimed next week as national veil week. Local merchants will give the sale of veils special attention during the week.

CITY MANAGER FIGHTS PHONE RATE INCREASE

Springfield Official Believes Company Not Entitled to Raise.

Springfield, O., March 13.—City Manager Carr yesterday voiced his protest against the proposed increase in telephone rates by the Central Union Telephone company in Springfield unless facts are produced justifying it.

"The company hasn't shown enough figures to convince me that they are entitled to it," he said.

The company announced its latest proposed increase as effective March 1. The state utilities commission at Columbus postponed the date of its effectiveness to April 1, and indications are that protests may at least postpone it longer.

Ground for Protest
Mr. Carr protests on the grounds that the financial report filed with the utilities commission and shown to the Springfield Chamber of Commerce is more a statement of expectations than a statement of facts. "It is not a financial statement," he says.

In the figures available he points out: The detailed report filed with the state authorities covering the entire

Ohio district does not separate the figures for the different cities. The fact that the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, the holding company, takes 4 1/2 per cent of the gross earnings, before anything else is considered, is not disclosed in the report.

Plant cost is given at the present cost or reproduction which is much higher than the actual cost to the company.

Mr. Carr says that while the city commission has no authority in the matter, a protest from it, or the Chamber of Commerce, or from citizens in groups or as individuals, may be made to the utilities commission.

The Central Union company has before the utilities commission schedules for rate increases in Columbus, Toledo, Dayton, Youngstown, Akron, Zanesville, Sandusky, as well as Springfield.

HUMAN FELLOWSHIP THE TIE THAT BINDS ABOVE ALL OTHERS.

Have you ever given a thought to what Fellowship means? We have an oldtime bound magazine—over a hundred years old. It is amusing to turn its pages and see how very much of its precious space is used in long-winded articles denouncing Masonry—virulently assailing it as the very earthly habitation of the old boy himself. Column upon column is used in specious argument that nothing outside of perdition can be worse than Masonry.

Now my Masonic demit has been in an old brown envelope for the last thirty or more years, so you see having been one of those frightful scamps, those imps of the dark lantern, I know, whereof I speak, and I can tell you that all those long-winded fiery diatribes spoken of above, were simply aimed at a harmless man-of-straw. There is a great deal of good religion in the Masonic ordinances, in addition to the lovely spirit of Fellowship which it inculcates. How silly then for men to be so wound-up in fanaticism as to spend their time in fighting a myth.

Now, we can tell you "the tie that binds" in the Masons, the Odd Fellows and all the other secret societies—it is Fellowship—with a big F. The craving for human companionship—the clasping of hands—the rubbing of elbows. It remains for the members of our churches to catch on, more and more, to this grand spirit of personal interest in each fellow member. It is coming—it is growing—and may we reverently say, to the glory of God.

The other day that wonderful Scotch patriot, Harry Lauder, in an address on the brotherliness of the Rotary Club, used some fine thoughts which seem to fit in here quite well, as follows:

"If all those men who have been opposing the peace treaty in the senate of the United States had been out on the western front and had seen the devastation of the Hun they would not delay the signing for a single moment.

"We hear much about the inventions of the Hun, but we should not forget that there are other and greater achievements than theirs. They did not invent the shuttle, the steam engine, or the telegraph, or the telephone, or the phonograph, or the aeroplane, or the railroad, or the submarine, or the newspaper. They did sell us their cheap wares and used the money to invent a great war. But the thing that Germany invented has been all smashed up.

"And now there are deeds to be done at home. When we build up now let us build up to the sky; let us build higher than the sky; let us build this time all the way up to God. If we leave anything undone we must take the responsibility.

"In these times I would not pay a man for a full day if he works only for a half a day. If there are twenty men who put their heart and their brain and their diligence into labor and, thirty who do not, I would level the thirty up to the twenty, and not the twenty down to the thirty.

"We must be emphatic. The men who are advocating wrong things are up against it hard. 'See you a man diligent in his business and he shall stand before Kings.' The old Scripture is still good."

GOOD HUMOR AND GOOD NATURE, LOVING HANDMAIDS.

For health and the constant enjoyment of life, give me a keen and ever present sense of Humor; it is the next best thing to an abiding faith in Providence.

A philosopher of note said: "I live in a constant endeavor to fence against the infirmities of ill-health, and other evils of life, by Mirth. I am persuaded that every time a man smiles, but much more so when he laughs, it adds something to this fragment of life.

Of course that is on the principle that, for the time being, it takes a man out of himself, or to be more explicit, makes him forget himself, his pains or his cares—and instead, gives him something to think about that is agreeable.

And besides, there are several spokes to this wheel of Good Humor. Take, for instance, the smiling face. What a fortune for anyone to have a radiant countenance. How welcome in any society; how uplifting in spirit to all who come in contact. The very opposite of the natural "grouch," whose long-faced pessimism chills all within a hundred feet.

Another spoke of worth in Good Humor is that it seems to be the outward emblem of good nature within. Blessed thought, who can tell all the beauties of such a character? A shrewd observer once said, that in walking the streets of a slippery morning, one might see where the Good Natured people lived, by the ashes thrown on the ice before the doors.

And if all that is not enough, we will clinch it with the words of one of our wisest authors, Washington Irving, as follows: "An inexhaustible good nature is one of the most precious gifts of heaven, spreading itself like oil over the troubled sea of thought, and keeping the mind smooth and equable in the roughest weather."

EACH GENERATION MUST DO ITS SHARE.

"There was an old lamp lighter who went down the street with his pole at twilight. At one lamp post he left a little glow, at the next lamp post another light, and so. I followed him until he was lost in the darkness, but there was a long avenue of lights. We shall all soon jump off of the wagon and our sons will jump on. They will do greater things than we have done. They can say, 'My dad lit the lights,' and we must keep them burning."

Some one has said that service is the coin in which humanity's debts are paid. Our debt is tremendous—the liberties we enjoy, the houses in which we live, are not of our getting. We owe for all of them. In our civilization, countless thousands serve every man every day. And as man rises above the average of his fellows, the thousands become tens of thousands, and his debt to humanity grows heavier. What must we realize before eternal justice will be established upon earth is that no man can pay his debt, and also that the only happiness he can have is in trying to pay it. And we must realize that folly's crown is on the head of him who tries to pay his debt to humanity by mere money.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason

MARCH WINDS.

ENJOY the whooping winds of March, exult in every stormy day, recline beneath a bending larch, and breathe in all the air you may. For soon the climate will repeat the stunt it's pulled for countless years, and ship in every brand of heat that it can bring from solar spheres. The later sultry days of June are just before you, as you'll find; July will land upon you soon, and August won't be far behind. So sit beneath a tortured beech, and let the cold winds fan your brow; enjoy the March winds as they screech—you have such blessings with you now. For soon again you'll have to rise to tasks 'neath which the spirit squirms; again you'll have to swat the flies, and boil the microbes and the germs. Through long, long summer nights you'll lie, and yearn in vain for soothing sleep, and wish the weather sharps might die, or moulder in a donjon keep. So sit beneath the spreading oak, and let the March winds do their trick; the heat of summer is no joke, and it is coming, pretty quick.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mr. T. H. Bell, the real estate agent, is now located in his new office on Green street.

Mr. L. F. Clevenger left this morning on his first trip in the interest of the Hooven & Allison Company.

Mr. C. F. Logan, who has been quite sick for several days past, is now thought to be improving.

The fireman on the local car on the Rapid Transit line, has lost his job by reason of the stove being taken out and new electric heaters installed.

Mr. Herbert Davis, who has been occupying the Doogan property on Home avenue, is preparing to move to his cosy new home on South Detroit street, next to the M. J. Hartley residence.

The friends of Attorney Charles H. Kvie will be sorry to hear that he is still sick, having been taken ill a week ago.

Mr. George Benham, who for a year past has been employed at the Pan-Handle freight house, has given up his position there and will be one of the conductors on the Dayton & Xenia Traction Line.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Is a young man supposed to send flowers to a young woman who is to accompany him to a dance?" asked George.

"It is not obligatory to do so. It is simply a graceful thing for him to do. It is more customary when she is the girl he is to marry," said his aunt.

CHATTER

"Does the crowing of our rooster annoy you?" inquired the considerate neighbor.

"No," said Mr. Crosslots. "When food is so scarce, I'm proud to be reminded that there is poultry in the neighborhood."

Mr. Brown has a girl who is willing, active and obedient, and gives her master and mistress every satisfaction. But Mary has one fault—she is very forgetful. Whenever the family sit down to dinner the bell has to be rung, as something is invariably discovered to be missing—say, a spoon, the bread, the salt, etc.

The other day the bell was rung as usual. The girl hurried to the dining room.

"Mary," said Mr. Brown, "just run an' fetch the big stepladder down from the attic and bring it here."

Mary, who had been disturbed at her dinner, gave a grunt of dissatisfaction and ran up the three flights of stairs to fetch down the heavy ladder. In about five minutes she returned to the room, panting with her exertions.

"And now," said Mr. Brown, "put it up at the end of the table and climb to the top."

Mary did as she was told, and when she was at the top Mr. Brown quietly observed:

"Mary, you have now got a better view than we have; just look round and tell us if you can see the salt on the table. Your mistress and I cannot find it."

That did it.

WHY DO YOU COUGH?

IT IS DANGEROUS

Never neglect a cough. Neglected coughs have caused much suffering and many deaths. You can find quick and lasting relief for coughs, colds, hoarseness, throat irritations and bronchial trouble by using Glando Pine, a highly concentrated cough compound which you mix with enough syrup to make a pint. If you bought this amount of ready-made cough medicine it would cost you about $2.50. Only pure, fresh drugs are used in Glando Pine and it can be depended upon. The first dose opens the air cells and you can breathe deep and easy. It tastes well and can be given to very young children. It keeps indefinitely. There is nothing better for croupy children. Public speakers find it to be just what they need to relieve their throat and strengthen their voice.

Get a three ounce bottle of Glando Pine (50 cents worth) and prepare it according to direction and begin on your cough or cold before it has a firm hold upon you. You may save yourself and family severe sickness. You can not afford to be without this valuable medicine in your home. You can not help but be pleased with the way it takes hold of a cough or cold. Be sure you get Glando Pine. Prepared only by the Glando Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Is It Yours?

THIS IS THE BIRTHDAY OF ESTHER JOHNSON

March 13, 1861.

Esther Johnson, who was the "Stella" of Jonathan Swift's writings, will always be one of the mysterious figures of literature. She was always the best friend of this brilliant English writer and never anything more than that, and there have been dozens of conjectures as to why Swift never married her.

When Swift first met Esther—or, as he called her, Stella—she was a small girl, and the friendship begun then lasted until her death. With a friend and companion, Mrs. Dingley, Stella usually lived near Swift and was a constant help and inspiration in his work. She was dark haired, bright eyed, witty and very beautiful, and the admiration of the group of writers who made that period in English literature such a brilliant one.

A second Esther entered into Swift's life, a beautiful and passionate woman whom Swift called "Vanessa." Vanessa wrote to Stella, demanding to know whether she was Swift's wife, mistress or simply a friend. Swift's anger when he found this out, broke Vanessa's heart and she died a few weeks afterwards. Five years afterwards, Stella followed her.

SHIP WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN N. Y.

New York, March 13.—Longshoremen, checkers and stevedores on the piers of the Mallory, Clyde, Morgan, Old Dominion, Savannah and Fall River steamship lines went on strike here today as a result of the refusal of the steamship owners to grant their demands for increased wages. None of the union workers reported at the piers of any of these companies. Police reserves are on guard but there have been no disorders.

Union leaders predict that practically all longshoremen, stevedores and checkers at the port of New York will join in the strike and that shipping will be tied up.

The decision to strike was arrived at after a unanimous vote of the local unions in favor of the strike had been announced. Union officials declared that a strike vote is being taken at all ports along the Atlantic coast and that the result will be known some time today.

MILK AT TEN CENTS PINT IN AKRON

Columbus, O., March 13.—Milk in Akron will sell for ten cents a pint and 16 cents a quart, beginning April 1, according to information received by local milk distributors. With this boost in effect, Akron milk prices will be on an equality with those prevailing in Cleveland, Toledo and other Ohio cities.

CONSTIPATION

A LETTER FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown following the birth of my oldest child. I got up too soon which caused serious female trouble. I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a curb-stone. One day one of your booklets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. EVA E. SHAY, Garnett, Kansas.

Her Bank Account

A good old joke is told of the woman who, when asked by the banker to indorse her husband's check so it could be cashed, wrote on the back: "I heartily indorse this check. Your loving wife, Mary." Whether that incident is true or not, it happens frequently in real life that some woman, left alone by her husband's absence or death, finds herself in woeful ignorance of how to manage her money affairs. Thoughtful farmers and other business men these days are opening bank accounts for their wives—as told in a splendid article in the next issue of

HUMAN FELLOWSHIP THE TIE THAT BINDS ABOVE ALL OTHERS.

Have you ever given a thought to what Fellowship means? We have an oldtime bound magazine—over a hundred years old. It is amusing to turn its pages and see how very much of its precious space is used in long-winded articles denouncing Masonry—virulently assailing it as the very earthly habitation of the old boy himself. Column upon column is used in specious argument that nothing outside of perdition can be worse than Masonry.

Now my Masonic demit has been in an old brown envelop for the last thirty or more years, so you see having been one of those frightful scamps, those imps of the dark lantern, I know, whereof I speak, and I can tell you that all those long-winded fiery diatribes spoken of above, were simply aimed at a harmless man-of-straw. There is a great deal of good religion in the Masonic ordinances, in addition to the lovely spirit of Fellowship which it inculcates. How silly then for men to be so wound-up in fanaticism as to spend their time in fighting a myth.

Now, we can tell you "the tie that binds" in the Masons, the Odd Fellows and all the other secret societies—it is Fellowship—with a big F. The craving for human companionship—the clasping of hands—the rubbing of elbows. It remains for the members of our churches to catch on, more and more, to this grand spirit of personal interest in each fellow member. It is coming—it is growing—and may we reverently say, to the glory of God.

The other day that wonderful Scotch patriot, Harry Lauder, in an address on the brotherliness of the Rotary Club, used some fine thoughts which seem to fit in here quite well, as follows:

"If all those men who have been opposing the peace treaty in the senate of the United States had been out on the western front and had seen the devastation of the Hun they would not delay the signing for a single moment.

"We hear much about the inventions of the Hun, but we should not forget that there are other and greater achievements than theirs. They did not invent the shuttle, the steam engine, or the telegraph, or the telephone, or the phonograph, or the aeroplane, or the railroad, or the submarine, or the newspaper. They did sell us their cheap wares and used the money to invent a great war. But the thing that Germany invented has been all smashed up.

"And now there are deeds to be done at home. When we build up now let us build up to the sky; let us build higher than the sky; let us build this time all the way up to God. If we leave anything undone we must take the responsibility.

"In these times I would not pay a man for a full day if he works only for a half a day. If there are twenty men who put their heart and their brain and their diligence into labor and thirty who do not, I would level the thirty up to the twenty, and not the twenty down to the thirty.

"We must be emphatic. The men who are advocating wrong things are up against it hard. 'See you a man diligent in his business and he shall stand before Kings.' The old Scripture is still good."

GOOD HUMOR AND GOOD NATURE, LOVING HANDMAIDS.

For health and the constant enjoyment of life, give me a keen and ever present sense of Humor; it is the next best thing to an abiding faith in Providence.

A philosopher of note said: "I live in a constant endeavor to fence against the infirmities of ill-health, and other evils of life, by Mirth. I am persuaded that every time a man smiles, but much more so when he laughs, it adds something to this fragment of life.

Of course that is on the principle that, for the time being, it takes a man out of himself, or to be more explicit, makes him forget himself, his pains or his cares—and instead, gives him something to think about that is agreeable.

And besides, there are several spokes to this wheel of Good Humor. Take, for instance, the smiling face. What a fortune for anyone to have a radiant countenance. How welcome in any society; how uplifting in spirit to all who come in contact. The very opposite of the natural "grouch," whose long-faced pessimism chills all within a hundred feet.

Another spoke of worth in Good Humor is that it seems to be the outward emblem of good nature within. Blessed thought, who can tell all the beauties of such a character? A shrewd observer once said, that in walking the streets of a slippery morning, one might see where the Good Natured people lived, by the ashes thrown on the ice before the doors.

And if all that is not enough, we will clinch it with the words of one of our wisest authors, Washington Irving, as follows: "An inexhaustible good nature is one of the most precious gifts of heaven, spreading itself like oil over the troubled sea of thought, and keeping the mind smooth and equable in the roughest weather."

EACH GENERATION MUST DO ITS SHARE.

There was an old lamp lighter who went down the street with his pole after twilight. At one lamp post he left a little glow, at the next lamp post another light, and so. I followed him until he was lost in the darkness, but there was a long avenue of lights. We shall all soon jump off of the wagon and our sons will jump on. They will do greater things than we have done. They can say, 'My dad lit the lights,' and we must keep them burning."

Some one has said that service is the coin in which humanity's debts are paid. Our debt is tremendous—the liberties we enjoy, the houses in which we live, are not of our getting. We owe for all of them. In our civilization, countless thousands serve every man every day. And as man rises above the average of his fellows, the thousands become tens of thousands, and his debt to humanity grows heavier. What must we realize before eternal justice will be established upon earth is that no man can pay his debt, and also that the only happiness he can have is in trying to pay it. And we must realize that folly's crown is on the head of him who tries to pay his debt to humanity by mere money.

MARCH WINDS.

ENJOY the whooping winds of March, exult in every stormy day, recline beneath a bending larch, and breathe in all the air you may. For soon the climate will repeat the stunt it's pulled for countless years, and ship in every brand of heat that it can bring from solar spheres. The later sultry days of June are just before you, as you'll find; July will land upon you soon, and August won't be far behind. So sit beneath a tortured beech, and let the cold winds fan your brow; enjoy the March winds as they screech—you have such blessings with you now. For soon again you'll have to rise to tasks 'neath which the spirit squirms; again you'll have to swat the flies, and boil the microbes and the germs. Through long, long summer nights you'll lie, and yearn in vain for soothing sleep, and wish the weather sharps might die, or moulder in a donjon keep. So sit beneath the spreading oak, and let the March winds do their trick; the heat of summer is no joke, and it is coming, pretty quick.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mr. T. H. Bell, the real estate agent, is now located in his new office on Green street.

Mr. L. F. Clevenger left this morning on his first trip in the interest of the Hoover & Allison Company.

Mr. C. F. Logan, who has been quite sick for several days past, is now thought to be improving.

The fireman on the local car on the Rapid Transit line, has lost his job by reason of the stove being taken out and new electric heaters installed.

Mr. Herbert Davis, who has been occupying the Doogan property on Home avenue, is preparing to move to his cosy new home on South Detroit street, next to the M. J. Hartley residence.

The friends of Attorney Charles H. Kyle will be sorry to hear that he is still sick, having been taken ill a week ago.

Mr. George Benham, who for a year past has been employed at the Pan-Handle freight house, has given up his position there and will be one of the conductors on the Dayton & Xenia Traction Line.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Is a young man supposed to send flowers to a young woman who is to accompany him to a dance?" asked George.

"It is not obligatory to do so. It is simply a graceful thing for him to do. It is more customary when she is the girl he is to marry," said his aunt.

CHATTER

"Does the crowing of our rooster annoy you?" inquired the considerate neighbor.

"No," said Mr. Crossilots. "When food is so scarce, I'm proud to be reminded that there is poultry in the neighborhood."

Mr. Brown has a girl who is willing, active and obedient, and gives her master and mistress every satisfaction. But Mary has one fault—she is very forgetful. Whenever the family sit down to dinner the bell has to be rung, as something is invariably discovered to be missing—say, a spoon, the bread, the salt, etc.

The other day the bell was rung as usual. The girl hurried to the dining room.

"Mary," said Mr. Brown, "just run an' fetch the big stepladder down from the attic and bring it here."

Mary, who had been disturbed at her dinner, gave a grunt of dissatisfaction and ran up the three flights of stairs to fetch down the heavy ladder. In about five minutes she returned to the room, panting with her exertions.

"And now," said Mr. Brown, "put it up at the end of the table and climb to the top."

"Mary did as she was told, and when she was at the top Mr. Brown quietly observed:

"Mary, you have now got a better view than we have; just look round and tell us if you can see the salt on the table. Your mistress and I cannot find it."

That did it.

Is It Yours?

THIS IS THE BIRTHDAY OF ESTHER JOHNSON March 13, 1861.

Esther Johnson, who was the "Stella" of Jonathan Swift's writings, will always be one of the mysterious figures of literature. She was always the best friend of this brilliant English writer and never anything more than that, and there have been dozens of conjectures as to why Swift never married her.

When Swift first met Esther—or, as he called her, Stella—she was a small girl, and the friendship began then lasted until her death. With a friend and companion, Mrs. Dingley, Stella usually lived near Swift and was a constant help and inspiration in his work. She was dark haired, bright eyed, witty and very beautiful, and the admiration of the group of writers who made that period in English literature such a brilliant one.

A second Esther entered into Swift's life, a beautiful and passionate woman whom Swift called "Vanessa." Vanessa wrote to Stella, demanding to know whether she was Swift's wife, mistress or simply a friend. Swift's anger when he found this out, broke Vanessa's heart and she died a few weeks afterwards. Five years afterwards, Stella followed her.

SHIP WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN N. Y.

New York, March 13.—Longshoremen, checkers and stevedores on the piers of the Mallory, Clyde, Morgan, Old Dominion, Savannah and Fall River steamship lines went on strike here today as a result of the refusal of the steamship owners to grant their demands for increased wages. None of the union workers reported at the piers of any of these companies. Police reserves are on guard but there have been no disorders.

Union leaders predict that practically all longshoremen, stevedores and checkers at the port of New York will join in the strike and that shipping will be tied up.

The decision to strike was arrived at after a unanimous vote of the local unions in favor of the strike had been announced. Union officials declared that a strike vote is being taken at all ports along the Atlantic coast and that the result will be known some time today.

MILK AT TEN CENTS PINT IN AKRON

With this boost in effect, Akron milk prices will be on an equality with those prevailing in Cleveland, Toledo and other Ohio cities.

A LETTER FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown following the birth of my oldest child. I got up too soon which caused serious female trouble. I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a curbstone. One day one of your booklets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. EVA E. SHAY, Garnett, Kansas.

A good old joke is told of the woman who, when asked by the banker to indorse her husband's check so it could be cashed, wrote on the back: "I heartily indorse this check. Your loving wife, Mary." Whether that incident is true or not, it happens frequently in real life that some woman, left alone by her husband's absence or death, finds herself in woeful ignorance of how to manage her money affairs. ## In The Realm of SPORTS In The Spot-Light

Larry Kopf.

The Cincinnati infielder who will start the coming campaign with his rep made.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Larry Kopf, dashing shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds, can look the world—baseball and otherwise—in the face this summer with a broad smile. For he goes into the coming campaign with the Cincinnati fans with him and full of confidence himself.

As I've stated before, Kopf was considered the weak sister of the Reds' infield last season when Moran started his outfit toward the pennant. "If the Reds could land Herzog for their infield, we'd cop in a walk," said one scribe, for instance. Kopf knew the general opinion of his ability, but kept his head up and played the limit. When the grand drive was on in full blast the world awoke to the fact that William Lawrence was covering short like a bearcat and was handling himself very capably, thank you, on the offense. And in the world series—we have to recall it frequently—he proved one of the Red heroes. He made but one boot in thirty-nine chances and slammed out six hits, good for ten bases in the eight melees.

Kopf was born in Bristol, Conn., in 1893, and started his baseball career at Fordham College, where the Cleveland Indians found him in 1912. They farmed him to Toledo and later let him go to the Athletics. He played second quite consistently for them in 1914 and 1915 and then was sent to Baltimore. The Reds signed him in 1917. When the war came along Larry played with the Fore River boys a while and then joined the army. Last year the Dodgers sought him and Moran agreed to let him go in the deal that brought Daubert to the Reds. Kopf balked—a lucky hunch on his part.

CARPENTIER DECLARES INTENTION TO FIGHT

Carpentier said that he is willing to fight Dempsey regardless of the war slacker charges against the American pugilist and that if Dempsey should be sent to jail, he will ask American fight promoters to hold a series to pick his opponent.

The final game of both the boys and girls will be played Saturday night. The dope set in circulation by the tournament, seems to indicate that Xenia and Beaver Creek will meet in the final game but the local team will have quite a lot of opposition in Bellbrook while Beaver will have to step some to win from Yellow Springs.

WLIDE OUTPOINTS MASON FRIDAY

Toledo, O., March 13.—When it is said that Jimmy Wilde, Britain's last remaining ring champion, is the mechanical genius of the prize ring, the whole story of last night's battle with Frankie Mason, America's best is told in a few words. Jimmy finished out in front with the hero from Fort Wayne after 12 of the best rounds that anybody has seen in a long time. The margin was not a wide one, for Mason put up at times a great battle and Wilde was put to the limit of his great genius to finish a trifle in front.

Rules of the Toledo boxing commission do not permit of a decision by the referee and none was rendered officially.

Mason was too much on the defensive in almost every round but the fifth to get anything but a lot of credit for a great showing against a man who is generally regarded as the world's best.

Mrs. Clara Harris is recovering from a serious operation performed at Hale's hospital, Wilmington, last Monday. She is a sister of Mrs. J. S. Painter.

TED LEWIS TO MEET BRITISH CHAMPION

Johnny Basham, in soldier togs, and Ted Lewis working out in England.

Ted Lewis, former world champion welterweight who lost the title to Jack Britton some moons ago, is going good in England. His next bout is with Johnny Basham, English welterweight, in London March 16. Basham is popular in England. He met defeat recently at the hands of Johnny Griffith, one of the other ring stars who went to the British Isles early in the year for battles.

RESULTS ARE AMAZING, SAYS THIS WOMAN

"I Can Feel Volatonic Helping Me," Says Mrs. Nagelesen.

Although Mrs. Emma J. Nagelesen of Apartment No. 5 at 333 West Ninth street, Cincinnati, O., has taken less than one bottle of Volatonic, "Builder of Strength," she says the results already are amazing.

To illustrate how Volatonic built up her strength Mrs. Nagelesen told of the difference she can notice now while doing her sweeping.

"Sweeping used to tire me out but since Volatonic built up my strength it is easy for me," she said.

"I was run down and weak and nervous before I took Volatonic. My appetite was very poor and the little food I did eat didn't digest right. I felt so badly that at times I could hardly get about and my work was becoming harder and harder.

"Volatonic's work is amazing, I haven't taken all of the first bottle yet but I can just feel it helping me and am getting better all the time.

"My appetite has come back and I can properly digest the food I eat now so that it does me good. The weakness and nervousness is disappearing and I am gaining in strength and already am so much stronger that the housework is a great deal easier.

"I am convinced that Volatonic is all it is represented to be and I do not hesitate to recommend it to every body."

If you are feeling weak and run down get Volatonic, "Builder of Strength"—TODAY!—and get real health and vigor.

Volatonic is being specially introduced in Xenia at Sayre & Hempfils, and in Jamestown by W. F. Harper.

Don't burn good fuel in a poor stove

It's a useless waste of good fuel and a needless extravagance to try to burn it in a poor stove. It is absolutely wrong to expect good food to supply energy, vitality, health and happiness if your stomach won't absorb and assimilate it. If you cannot eat with enjoyment, if your food does you no good, if food distresses rather than benefits, then you have indigestion or dyspepsia. The best remedy to use is PEP SINCO.

HOW TO GET FAT
The list of food values measured in calories which was published last week, is as valuable to the thin woman as to the fat. The fat woman can find out by it what foods to avoid and the thin woman will know which foods are most fattening.

Recently I received a number of letters from women and girls who are under weight, who want to grow stout, but who for some reason or other cannot drink milk. In that case I advise malted milk which costs little and which can be kept indefinitely without ice. Two table-spoonsful in a glass of hot water is as fattening as a glass of the richest milk.

One table-spoonful of olive oil contains more than 100 calories of nourishment. Four table-spoonsful of olive oil taken every day would equal three glasses of cold milk. The emulsions of oil which are on the market have about the same fattening value, and in many cases contain ingredients which stimulate the appetite and make you fat by causing you to eat more food.

The thin woman should eat plenty of bread thickly covered with butter, should drink cocoa in preference to tea or coffee, should eat something simple and nourishing between meals and should get at least nine hours sleep in a room filled with fresh air.

Questions and Answers
M. E. D.—The calorie list you wish was published last week. I have very little faith in hot epsom salts baths as a means of reducing, although you will certainly lose weight if you take a daily hot bath and soak for several minutes in the tub.

A Subscriber—A woman of 34, who is five feet six, should not weigh more than 139 pounds, and can weigh less.

Bluebird—A girl of 17, five foot three, should weigh about 120 pounds. So you see you are about the correct weight for your age.

Dorothy—Your facial treatment has nothing to do with bringing about the red nose which you complain of. The usual cause of a red nose is some digestive disturbance. If your stomach is in perfect condition, you can relieve the redness of the nose by massaging it and tapping it with the fingers to break up the congestion of blood which causes its color.

Martha—A girl 18, five feet three should weigh 120 pounds.

K. B. M.—I think the articles of food mentioned above answers the questions in your letter.

Interested Reader—In making the lotion to overcome excessive perspiration, it is the strained liquid that is kept and not the solid matter.

Heart and Home Problems
BY MISS EMERSON THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Five years ago I kept company with a girl my own age. She was exceptionally pretty, talented, educated in college, and from a very fine old and wealthy family. Her parents and my parents had been pals from childhood. They were most happy because they were sure we would marry in time.

Then I went away to a large city, where I met a fellow who I thought was a "mut." I felt sorry for him, and on coming back brought him, who had become nearly a pal, because I could do anything with him. I put him to work with us and he stayed at our house. He went with me everywhere and I thought I was educating him.

One Sunday I took my lady friend and secured another for him. We took a long trip to a lake, but this fellow couldn't leave my friend alone. He stuck like glue and I had failed to educate him in etiquette. He called the girl on long distance and made a date. Finally I discharged him. He went away and I found out that he went to see her very often. I did not go back to see her. I decided I would forget her by going to school. When I got there, she was there, ready to spin a gauzy web around me, because the other fellow had gone to war. It was two months before I fell, but I was determined to play my part and so I told her I loved her and we would be married.

I bought a car and took her everywhere. Then the war was over. She told the other fellow she did not care for him and not to come back. After she had said this I went with another girl more beautiful than she and I told her I did not care for her at all and never did or never would. She wrote the other fellow, who came back immediately. She is going to marry the boy with the bad record for generations back. He has no money to go ahead with, but I hope they come out all right.

Will you tell me who is the fool, the girl or myself?

GLAD TO HAVE FOUND HER OUT.
I think you were the fool. You hardened your heart for revenge. It is not up to you to punish; a "river" hand with more sense of justice could take care of that.

You say of the man, "He has no money to go ahead." Perhaps not, but if he has love in his heart the girl will be happier with him than she would be with you, since you find joy in cruelty.

Try to be more gentle and remember that riches are nothing if you have not love in your heart.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years of age and have been going with a boy twenty-two years of age. We are engaged. Do you think we are doing wrong by keeping it a secret? I have always been a good girl and tried to live a clean life. I have no mother or relative to go to for advice.

My friend is now sick in bed. Do you think people would talk if I went to see him? Would it be all right to take him flowers?

I THANK YOU.
I do not believe in secret engagements. Usually one party is giving himself a loophole to get out of the engagement without people knowing. If he decides he does not want to marry. Either remain friends, or announce your engagement.

It would be all right to call to see how he is and to take flowers.

APARTMENT HOUSE CHANGES OWNERS; SOME OTHER DEALS

The real estate firm of Long and Marshall announced Saturday the sale of the two apartment residence belonging to Harry Siefert on West Second street, to George C. Tiffany. Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany have been occupying one of the apartments for some time, and the other apartment is taken by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Borling.

This firm also announces the sale of the residence of Edward Lampert of The Engle Floral Company and one and one-half acres on the Dayton pike, to W. C. Sutton. The house is the old Engle home. Mr. Sutton will be given possession the first of August. In the meantime Mr. Lampert will build a bungalow on the corner lot facing the Dayton pike and Woodland cemetery drive.

The abattoir and five acres of land on the Cincinnati pike, belonging to the Derrick estate, was sold to Philip Diehl, son-in-law of Sheriff L. Funderburg. Mr. Diehl will enter the retail meat business in this city, April 1, in the room in the Manhattan hotel building which is now rented to the Holiness church.

He will prepare his own meats at the Cincinnati pike plant. Mr. Diehl is experienced in the meat business, having been engaged in that industry in Osborn before his removal to this city.

TROOPS CALLED OUT
Berlin, March 13.—Troops were called out to disperse crowds of women and children during an unemployment demonstration at Munich yesterday, owing to the issue of ration cards for a reduced ration of 2 1/2 pounds of bread weekly. There were no casualties.

POINCAIRE SCORES SUPREME COUNCIL

Paris, March 13.—Former President Poincare, in his first political article in The Review Des Deux Mondes, denounces Germany for her attempt to secure a revision of the treaty of Versailles. He asks the Anglo-Saxon friends of France, before being moved to pity at Germany's fate, to look at France's devastated regions and says that "having paid with our blood and our property for victory and the freedom of nations, we have an inalienable and imprescriptible right to recover damages."

The former president sharply criticizes the stand of the supreme council with regard to the eastern situation, the Adriatic, the Russian soviet government and its attitude concerning small nations. In conclusion M. Poincare expressed the wish that the supreme council will "sleep its last sleep."

HOOVER TESTIFIES BEFORE COMMITTEE

Washington, March 13.—Because of the increasing rate of submarine sinkings in April 1917, "the war was at a debatable end," Herbert Hoover today told the senate committee investigating the charges by Admiral Sims, "that delay in the navy department nearly lost us the war."

"The breadstuff supply was most critical," Hoover said. "The reserve stocks probably did not exceed three weeks supply. The situation in France and Italy was probably more acute than in England and was causing much anxiety."

KING COLLAPSES AT NEWBERRY TRIAL

Grand Rapids, March 13.—Paul King, Newberry campaign manager, made a vain attempt to resume testimony in the Newberry elections conspiracy trial today. Suffering from effects of a nervous collapse, incurred last Tuesday, King was exhausted after five minutes' effort to recollect happenings of the 1918 senatorial campaign. Court was suspended while two physicians and Mrs. King attended him. Then the doctors ordered him back to bed.

Dr. James B. Bradley, former auditor general of Michigan, and one of the defendants, was one of the physicians who attended King in court. He said King was "a complete physical wreck" and doubted whether he would fully recover from his attack for a year.

NEW FOUNDRY WILL LOCATE IN W. C. H.

The Washington Metal Products Company, a new $50,000 foundry concern, will locate in Washington C. H. within the next few weeks having purchased the abandoned stove company plant in that city from the Sanderson-Cyclone Drill Company of Orrville, Ohio.

The company is headed by John D. Boome of Detroit, Mich., and all outside people are interested. The concern expects to employ about 100 men and will apply for a charter soon. The production will be gray iron castings the same as to be manufactured in the Xenia Foundry and Machine Company, which will erect a factory here soon.

ICE JAM PROVES NO BIG BARRIER

Port Oposit, Md., March 13.—The tremendous ice jam in the Susquehanna River, extending from this point to Havre de Grace at the river's mouth, finally succumbed today to the heavy bombardment from airplanes of the last three days, combined with the influence of mild weather, and passed out into Chesapeake Bay. It is believed that the dangerous flood menace to this town has been removed and the citizens are planning a banquet to the army aviators in appreciation of their work.

The Washington Metal Products Company, a new $50,000 foundry concern, will locate in Washington, C. H., within the next few weeks, having purchased the abandoned stove company plant in that city from the Sanderson-Cyclone Drill Company of Orrville, Ohio.

The company is headed by John D. Boome of Detroit, Mich., and all outside people are interested. The concern expects to employ about 100 men and will apply for a charter soon. The production will be gray iron castings the same as to be manufactured in the Xenia Foundry and Machine Company, which will erect a factory here soon.

ICE JAM PROVES NO BIG BARRIER

Port Oposit, Md., March 13.—The tremendous ice jam in the Susquehanna River, extending from this point to Havre de Grace at the river's mouth, finally succumbed today to the heavy bombardment from airplanes of the last three days, combined with the influence of mild weather, and passed out into Chesapeake Bay.

It is believed that the dangerous flood menace to this town has been removed and the citizens are planning a banquet to the army aviators in appreciation of their work.

MARKET AND FINANCIAL NEWS

Farm Reserves Suggest Maintenance of Prices at Renumerative Level

Despite Fall in Exports—Labor Outlook Discouraging—Price Fixing Opposed in New York State—Co-operation in Census Urged.

(Business Feature Service)

The government's report on farm changes the aspect of farm production somewhat and suggests the maintenance of grain prices at levels consistent with the price levels of other commodities. Despite the restrictions which car shortage and the farmer's disinclination to sell imposed upon the movement, more wheat from the farm from July 1 to March 1 than in 1918. Exports fell 60,000,000 bushels. Consumption of corn during the past four months materially exceeded that of the two years previous.

Total farm reserves on March 1, including all principal grains except rye, exceeded last year's by only 65,000,000 bushels. Oats and barley holdings were less. The corn crop was of fine quality. Apparently the farmers have made exceptional progress in moving the bumper wheat and corn crops. Demand has been active. The inference is that the year's carry-over will not be so burdensome and that prices will show a welcome element of support.

The farm labor outlook reveals no perceptible improvement, and labor will constitute the farmer's gravest problem during the 1920 season. Predictions are made that farm labor will demand and receive higher wages than ever before. The present tendency either to cut down holdings or to extend them with a view of making the most efficient use of machinery and large scale methods may be expected to strengthen. On the other hand, men have returned from the army who were not available last year. The tractor is gaining wider use and helping to overcome the labor shortage.

The dairymen of New York state, aided by the Merchants association of New York city and other bodies, have opposed bills introduced in the legislature to regulate and fix the price of milk. The Merchants argue that the proposed legislation is "needless as a protection against exorbitant prices inasmuch as prices are determined by costs of production and distribution, and restricted by active and continuous competition"; and is "pernicious because they seek to control prices by statute, to depress prices by municipal competition with private enterprise, and to substitute state regulations for the operation of economic laws."

Farmers generally unite with business men in opposing all needless government regulation of private industry, and condemn price-fixing. The farmer is especially hostile to efforts at price-fixing that touch only foodstuffs and leave unregulated the prices of articles he buys.

Amid all the talk of declining exports, a surplus of goods, a possible reverse in retail trade, and falling prices there is growing recognition by the public at large of the importance of the farmer's buying power as a sustaining element in almost any field of business. The farmer is frequently described as the backbone of retail trade. When the prices paid him for foodstuffs diminish, he buys less and trade suffers as a result. Again is emphasized the necessity for price reductions that shall apply not to foodstuffs alone, but to all staple commodities simultaneously.

Director Rogers reports that the farm census is not making satisfactory progress. Needless to say, every farmer should—and will—co-operate to expedite the collection of data upon which much depends in shaping future policy.

STOCKS

The market developed a stronger tone under the combined encouragement of the Supreme court decision that stock dividends are not taxable and somewhat easier money. Bulls foresaw the beginning of a broad upward movement. Although the public has not participated actively in the market for a long time and sales have been much restricted at times, the recent advance and stronger tone has been an invitation that many speculators cannot refuse. If the rise continues, public interest and the volume of actual business will expand.

After the Monday tax payments the strain on credit will be less severe. Nevertheless money will continue rather tight and conservative brokers see no possibility of an extended forward movement. The spring will bring seasonal relief from transportation tie-ups, but at the same time it will bring new credit demands. Financiers do not foresee a sufficient importation of gold from European countries to ease the credit situation decidedly.

BLAME AMERICA FOR TURK FUSS SAYS BRITISHER

Treaty Ought To Have Been Made Year Ago.

London, March 13.—Blame for the troubles that are being experienced in settling the Turkish problem were laid at the door of the United States in explaining the peace conference's negotiations to the house of lords.

Earl Curzon's Statement.
Earl Curzon's statement follows: "The difficulties with which we are confronted result from the fact that the treaty with Turkey ought to have been taken up a year ago. The delay is solely due to America; it is deeply regrettable. I blame nobody but the present situation is due to the fact that 12 months have been lost in dealing with it."

Earl Curzon spoke in answer to Viscount Bryce, who declared that the Turk had been directly or indirectly responsible for all the European wars in the past century, and maintained that he should be driven out of Europe and even behind the Taurus Mountains.

In Terms of Friendship.
Earl Curzon said the peace conference believed the only way to expect a quiet near East was to arrange things that the new states could be on terms of friendship in some measure with their neighbors. To take Constantinople from the Turk and otherwise lay down too hard a peace he declared, would only aggravate his hatred and result in unending turmoil.

A plan for immediately impressing Turkey that she must conform with the armistice had been completed the foreign secretary said, and the allies had sent instructions to their high commissioners at Constantinople to execute it. It was inadvisable to make this plan public at the present time, as publication might defeat the allies' aims.

With that matter settled, the conference will attempt to decide upon the disposition of Cilicia and Armenia. As many questions must be submitted to the allied governments the procedure will be slow; hence he did not hope for the completion of the treaty before April 1.

The foreign secretary added that the peace conference hoped that when the new states were set up in Asia Minor, however, that the United States "would help materially in assisting the new Armenia."

Prince Feisal, son of the king of the Hedjaz, has been proclaimed king of Syria, according to advice received in Cairo from Beirut, says a dispatch to the London Times from the Egyptian capital.

BOWERSVILLE CO. TO CHANGE NAME

The Bowersville Elevator Company of Bowersville, and Jamestown, has made application to the secretary of state for leave to change its name to The Greene County Grain Company, and to increase its capital stock from $20,000 to $75,000.

The company now controls the two elevators and flour mill at Jamestown, which it bought two weeks ago from E. A. Allen, and the old Perrill elevator at Bowersville.

The Bowersville Elevator Company was formed a year ago, the stockholders being chiefly farmers living in that vicinity. The company purchased the Perrill elevator from County Commissioner George N. Perrill. Recently the company branched out, taking in a number of stockholders at Jamestown, and bought the two elevators and flouring mill at Bowersville.

John B. Peale is president of this company, and D. Lackey secretary and treasurer.

SENATOR VISITS THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 13.—Senator Swanson of Virginia, called at the White House today and conferred with Secretary Tumulty. The senator then waited until Secretary Tumulty went to see the president and returned with a message for the Virginia senator.

"State matters," was the explanation of Senator Swanson for his visit. He refused to comment on a report that he carried a message from President Wilson to Democratic senators.

RESIDENCE THREATENED BY MORNING BLAZE

Quick action and hand work on the part of neighbors who served as volunteer firemen saved the home of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Davis from burning when the smoke house, a small frame structure ignited during the night. The smoke house and the summer kitchen adjoining burned. The volunteer fire fighters kept the roof of the house soaked with water, and prevented embers igniting it.

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED---AND EARNED

BY JANE PHELPS

A MODERN STORY OF HOME AND BUSINESS

ROBERT'S GREAT IDEA

I seldom wept, but I cried until I fell asleep that night. The last thing I remembered was the clock striking 11, and Robert had not yet come in.

I had wept partly because of Robert, partly because I was so worn out that, once started, I couldn't stop. It had been some time since Robert had been to see Marion—to my knowledge. So I should not have allowed that alone to make me miserable. I had not been tired out. The next day was Sunday and I determined to lie in bed nearly all day. I awoke with a start. I had heard the front door slam, and sat up in bed. Could it be Robert, and was he—had he been drinking again? He never slammed doors when he was himself.

Breathlessly I listened. The steps mounted the stairs, then passed my door. Evidently not Robert. Wide-awake now I jumped up and switched on the light. Three o'clock, and Robert not yet in! The clock could not be right. Just as I reached for my watch the clock in the church tower boomed out three times. What could have happened? Perhaps he had been hurt again.

"Where in the world have you been?" I asked as the door quietly opened a moment later, and Robert came in.

"I told you I was going to Marion's, didn't I?"

"Yes, but you surely haven't been there until this hour. It would compromise her as well as yourself."

"No, I haven't been there all this time." He offered no further explanation, but I was not annoyed, too curious to be polite, so I inquired:

"Where have you been?"

"See here, Gerry! This has got to stop." For the first time I saw he had been drinking, not much, perhaps, but still it had affected him.

"What has got to stop? Surely you don't object to telling me where you have been?"

"Surely I do! I pay my way now, don't I? You aren't supporting me, are you? When you do, you can ask where I have been and I will answer, but not before. You can put that in your pipe and smoke it!"

"Don't be vulgar, Robert." I was furiously angry now. He was not drunk, so I couldn't make that an excuse. It was abominable in him to stay out until almost morning and then talk to me as he was doing. I would not endure it.

What has come over you? I went on. "Tell me where you have been!—I am your wife, and have some rights, even if I do keep still most of the time when other women would make a fuss."

"Been playing pool. Won too. Shall play every night, so you may as well get used to the idea, don't you think? If I can't make money one way, I will another."

"Robert Meredith, what are you talking about? Surely you don't mean what you say."

"Wait and see whether I mean it or not. Married man, no home. Example in arithmetic. What's the answer? Pool room. Man no good at job. Can't make money. Makes money in pool room. Proves—don't you see?"

"I see you have been drinking again," I snapped, "and that you better come to bed! Burch and Company won't have you if you aren't careful."

"To hell with them!" he returned. "Don't care if I quit tomorrow."

I said no more, because I couldn't! I was crying again, but quietly so Robert would not know.

He stumbled about as he undressed, then went to bed. But I lay awake until time to rise. What had come over my husband? Naturally quiet and refined, he had changed so completely that I scarcely recognized him as the same man. Morbid, sullen, then like this—as he had been when he came in, profane, ugly.

He had been gambling in some pool room, drinking, and had declared he was going to continue doing the same thing every night. Of course he did not mean it—he scarcely knew what he was saying, I excused. But he HAD done it. He MIGHT do it again.

BLAME AMERICA FOR TURK FUSS SAYS BRITISHER

Treaty Ought To Have Been Made Year Ago.

London, March 13.—Blame for the troubles that are being experienced in settling the Turkish problem were laid at the door of the United States in explaining the peace conference's negotiations to the house of lords.

Earl Curzon's statement follows: "The difficulties with which we are confronted result from the fact that the treaty with Turkey ought to have been taken up a year ago. The delay is solely due to America; it is deeply regrettable. I blame nobody, but the present situation is due to the fact that 12 months have been lost in dealing with it."

Earl Curzon spoke in answer to Viscount Bryce who declared that the Turk had been directly or indirectly responsible for all the European wars in the past century, and maintained that he should be driven out of Europe and even behind the Taurus Mountains.

In Terms of Friendship. Earl Curzon said the peace conference believed the only way to expect a quiet near East was so to arrange things that the new states could be on terms of friendship in some measure with their neighbors. To take Constantinople from the Turk and otherwise lay down too hard a peace he declared, would only aggravate his hatred and result in unending tur moil.

A plan for immediately impressing Turkey that she must conform with the armistice had been completed the foreign secretary said, and the allies sent instructions to their high commissioners at Constantinople to execute it. It was inadvisable to make this plan public at the present time, as publication might defeat the allies' aims.

With that matter settled, the conference will attempt to decide upon the disposition of Cilicia and Armenia. As many questions must be submitted to the allied governments the procedure will be slow; hence he did not hope for the completion of the treaty before April 1.

The foreign secretary added that the peace conference hoped that when the new states were set up in Asia Minor, however, that the United States "would help materially in assisting the new Armenia."

Prince Faisal, son of the king of the Hedjaz, has been proclaimed king of Syria, according to advice received in Cairo from Beirut, says a dispatch to the London Times from the Egyptian capital.
